COLLEGE PROF. LOST AND FOUND

A hidden trail and a dark night were the two chief causes of Professor J. S. Donaghoo of the College of Hawaii being lost for five hours last night in the Waialae valley, during which time searching parties were scouring the surrounding ridges and valleys in their effort to find him, and which resulted in his arriving home at 11 o'clock little the worse for his experience.

Yesterday afternoon Professor Donaghoo went up the valley for a hike, and on his way home he reached the Lanikuli ridge at about 6 o'clock in the evening and came to the house near the upper end of the valley. He thought that from that point it would take him about three hours to arrive at his home if he took the old trail, and so he started out once more. Darkness soon settled over the valley and although Mr. Donaghoo had gone over the trail many times before in the daytime, he soon lost it, due to the fact that it was partly overgrown with lantana and ferns.

He then left the trail and tried to follow the stream, but the going was so rough that he finally decided that at the rate he was going it would take him all night to get home.

He left the bed of the stream and climbed up the ridge on the right and after hunting around for a short time finally came upon the Alewa heights trail. Following this, he arrived home at 11 o'clock. He was informed that a number of searching parties had gone out in search of him a few minutes before. In speaking about the matter this afternoon, professor Donaghoo said that he knows the old trail about as well as anybody could, and that he once went over it in the middle of the night, but the cause of his being lost for the short time was due to the fact that the trail was almost completely covered over by foliage, and that it could not be seen for any distance no matter how bright the night might happen to be.

FIGHT FOR THURSTON

Thurston's formal application for reelection, there has also been filed accompanying it there has been filed with Mayor Fern a strong petition that Thurston be named again. The petition is signed by an overwhelming number of businessmen.

The board of supervisors, it was reported this morning, is divided and there may be three members who will oppose Thurston. The board will caucus tonight and probably settle the Thurston matter then.

Chief Thurston has been strongly endorsed by the board of fire underwriters and business men generally on the basis of merit, and when the report came out this morning that the mayor and some of the supervisors are lukewarm on reappointing him, business men prepared to take some definite action to indicate their indignation at seeing political favoritism injected into the fire department.

Chief Thurston had nothing whatever to do with the petition, which came out entirely from business men and interests and is non-partisan. His formal application made to the mayor this morning was not made in connection with the petition, which was presented through the signers.

NEW PIPE ORGAN DEDICATED

The handsome new pipe organ which was recently installed in the First Methodist Episcopal church was dedicated yesterday, special services being held in the church both morning and evening. Dr. J. W. Wadman conducted the dedication service, which consisted of the reading of psalm 150, together with ritual selection and prayers.

The subject of the morning sermon by Rev. R. Elmer Smith was "The Ministry of Music," and he took for his text "Men Singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, musical instruments." Following this, a musical program was rendered, Miss Gemma Wadman playing several selections on the new organ which were very well executed. Mrs. Tackabury and Miss Latham sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd," and Miss Weiss, "Rejoice Greatly."

There will be no services at the church next Sunday evening, as the Methodist church will unite in the monthly meeting at the Bijou theater. The prayer meeting on New Year's night will be led by Dr. Wadman.

THRUM'S ANNUAL IS OUT AGAIN

If any feature or phase of the life in these islands has been left out of the thirty-ninth edition of Thrum's Hawaiian Almanac and Annual, it would take mighty close search by an expert to discover it, and then the matter would most likely prove of little importance. From holidays, church days and eclipses to ancient fables of the old Hawaiian gods and goddesses; from the value of domestic merchandise shipments to the United States, passengers to and from Honolulu during the year just ending, Hawaii's trade balance from 1886, the table of rainfall, to the dead and gone stories of Honolulu's whaling days, sugar plantations, run the subjects covered by the annual. It is one of the most important publications of the year, showing as it does the enormous growth of the territory during the last twelve months, and as its advertisement declares, should "prove of benefit to merchant, tourist and others." Thomas G. Thrum is the compiler and publisher, and the book is well and clearly printed on good quality paper, with an attractive paper cover.

Young Man:

You must wear clothing during 1913 as was customary during 1912. Our stock has not been depleted in the least by the heavy trade of the last few weeks. Our goods keep coming right along.

Many a young man gets a benefit from good clothes that's much greater than the cost of them. We're working along that idea every day in the year and have produced in Honolulu for young men the styles and models that will give them the greatest measure of smart fashion, with the highest degree of quality-value, and without going to such style extremes as to undo the good that such clothes can do.

Youthful models, youthful colors and patterns, youthful weaves; designed and cut by special young men's experts; sizes for the big, brawny football athlete or for the small and lively "rooster."
